

Pet Care Foundation's Grooming Program saves lives

Before and after of a pooch who experienced Pet Care Foundation's Grooming Program. Groomed pets have an 82 percent adoption rate.

The Pet Care Foundation's Grooming Program runs five days a week with three professional groomers visiting all of the Los Angeles City Animal Shelters and the Pasadena Humane Society. Groomed pets have an 82 percent adoption rate through this program. Pets that are groomed are happier, healthier and much more adoptable.

Brenda Barnette, GM for LA Animal Services said, "LA Animal Services is so grateful to the Pet Care Foundation for all that they do. The grooming program definitely saves lives and makes the pets much happier too."

Bill Crowe, Pet Care Foundation executive director said, "Our founder, Paula Kent Meehan, created this program. With her Redkin beauty background it is a natural fit for the Foundation. Groomed pets feel better, act better, look better, smell better, are healthier without fleas and ticks, so it's natural they get adopted quicker,"

The mission of the Foundation is to assist in the reuniting of lost pets with their owners/guardians and assist with the placement of homeless/shelter animals. They assist with the implementation of pet licensing and micro-chipping and provide educational programs to promote the understanding of animals including care and training. They improve the health of animals and healing of the disabled or ill in home or medical environments.

To find the LA City shelter nearest you and/or to see all of the animals available for adoption, go to laanimalservices.com. For more information about other Pet Care Foundation programs visit petcarefoundation.org or contact Bill Crowe at (310) 247-8469 or email: bill@petcarefoundation.org.