

Local animal welfare agencies' 'Trap/Neuter/Return' effort targets unsterilized felines

Kitten nursery manager Chris Ramon of Pasadena Humane Society, and the team at LUXE Paws, went out on a "TNR" - Trap/Neuter/Return mission the night of Friday, September 27. They ended up trapping 51 unsterilized community cats in their neighborhoods. Thanks to a grant from The Pet Care Foundation, the cats have been spayed and neutered and will no longer be having babies in bushes and backyards.

"The females will no longer know the stress of having one, two, or even three litters in a single year," said Bill Crowe, Executive Director of The Pet Care Foundation. "The hard work of dedicated people in a single weekend has potentially prevented upwards of 1,000 kittens from being born on the streets during next year's kitten season, and has improved the lives of these community cats."
